

Welcome to the No Child Left Behind Cafeteria

- where success is just one chew away

At The No Child Left Behind Cafeteria, we've learned that eating alone is not enough. Children's mouths need to be held accountable. We, as a nation, need real results. That's why we're beginning this state of the art menu next week at schools across the country.

Menu

Monday:

Deep-fried Sauteed Tests, with a side of pencil dust and Prozac

Dessert: Happy-Happy-High-Score Muffins

Tuesday:

Grilled Flambe Retention Slips, with a zest of lemon welfare checks

Dessert: ADD Donuts

Wednesday:

No meals will be served.

Students will gather silently in the cafeteria and meditate before a large Bronze statue of George Bush that repeats "America, I think we deserve an A plus plus plus!"

For students that get hungry, there will be a small supply of Rod Paige's Home Cookin' Hot Dawgs available for a small fee from the principal's office.

Thursday:

3rd Grade Practice Test Stew, topped with shredded Kaplan tutor bills

Dessert: Zoloft-For-Kids Cookies

Friday:

The weekly Fill-In-the-Blanks Pig Roast. Each child will take a fill-in-the-blanks test from their seat in the cafeteria. For each question that the child gets right, they will run to the middle of the cafeteria and receive a slice of roasted pig. This will go on until the pig is gone.

Dessert: Computer Chip Ice Cream

At the NCLB cafeteria, we believe that eating is an activity that demands real accountability for all children. That's why we're ensuring success among the young digestive systems of this nation by placing DAD's, or Digestive Accountability Devices, at all major tracts of our children's intestines. Starting next week, we're going to be monitoring the metabolic processes of students and seating them according to their DAD index. That way, those who are having the most problem digesting tests will all sit at the same table until they decide to eat it.

At the end of the year, those who eat the most tests with the least digestive complications and greatest speed will meet their other test masters from around the nation at the 1st Annual Test Bowl in Dallas, Texas. All those accepted to the Test Bowl will receive full scholarships to their respective state universities and a free tattoo of their official test scores on any part of their body.

Feel like throwing up yet?
Go to www.NoMoreTests.com